1. What is the AFIMEGQ Project?

The AFIMEGQ Project is a partnership of 10 ACP (African, Caribbean and Pacific) Higher Education Institutions, a Technical Partner ULille1 and 10 Associate Institutions. This project is financed by the European Commission through the Intra-ACP (Mwalimu Julius Nyerere Programme) a cooperation and mobility programme in the area of Higher Education, implemented by the Education, Audio-visual and Culture Executive Agency (EACEA). It is a partnership within which students, researchers and academic and administrative staff from the AFRICAN Countries will be selected and will receive financial support to develop masters, mobility within doctoral programmes, research, teaching and administrative activities in Africa. This project focuses on training and research, involving the five regions of Africa, 10 partner universities and 10 associate members from 13 African countries covering four working languages (Arabic, French, English and Portuguese) and six European countries (EU). AFIMEGQ takes its name from the Pidgin language in West to Central Africa, which literally means "I can do it." The project aims to exchange students and scientists in various scientific fields within two technical platforms using a multidisciplinary approach between the concepts « to live well (activities related to development) and live long (emerging concept of One Health)."

The expected results of this initiative are:

- Amplification of the reform initiatives through inter-regional harmonization of systems in HEI in Africa,
- Scientific exchange in multidisciplinary fields and strengthening the quality of training,
- Educational innovations by designing modules for employability and improving competitiveness and entrepreneurship among students
- Sharing and disseminating good practices towards sustainable development of networks at the continental, regional and bilateral levels,
- Training of academic and administrative staff and their involvement with institutional leaders and policy-makers in order to develop cooperation in the overall strategy of institutional internationalization and appropriate governance
